

Harpers & Queen Travel Supplement

Page 207, OCTOBER 1995, John Hatt

Huab. A beautiful lodge with eight large and very attractive bungalow bedrooms. As at all the other Lodges, you eat communally. The food and drink is excellent. The owners are knowledgeable and enthusiastic wildlife experts, and are restoring their area (previously a ranch) for the benefit of the habitat and wild animals, which are increasing. The cost of this lodge appears expensive by Namibian standards, but it is far more luxurious than the others, and the price includes all expenses, including food and drinks. In my opinion it is good value.